Articulation is one of the primary means of realizing an “expanded access, improved quality and increased diversity of provision; a stronger and more cooperative relationship between education and training institutions and the workplace” (White Paper on Post-School Education and Training, 2013).

As an important contribution towards achieving this aspiration, the Durban University of Technology is launching the Unfurling Post School Education and Training (UPSET) Project, funded by the University Capacity Development Programme (UCDP). The primary goal of the Project is the co-ordinated, national implementation of the Articulation Policy within and across the Post-School Education and Training (PSET) sector. Are you interested in Articulation?

Please join us as we embark on a journey to establish a nationwide cohort of articulation champions.
