Dr Ashley Ross
Head of Department

Department of Homoeopathy

Durban University of Technology

Dr Ashley Ross is a Senior Lecturer and Head of Department of Homoeopathy at DUT. In addition to teaching, Dr Ross is in private practice and engages in clinical and research supervision. This lecture arises from a particular interest in homoeopathic provings, and describes Dr Ross' recent research that investigated the relationship of proving methodology to the scientific and traditional African understandings of medicinal plants.

Dr Ross has delivered lectures and seminars in South Africa, India and the UK, is a member of the International Advisory Board of the Complementary Medicine in Clinical Practice Journal, and was recently appointed to lead the Committee on Provings of the International League of Homoeopathic Physicians (LMHI). In addition to his having presented numerous papers, and chaired a scientific session at a number of LMHI Congresses, Dr Ross has been invited to be a keynote speaker at the 67th LMHI Congress to be held in Nara, Japan in September 2012. He is a member of the National Board of the Homoeopathic Association of South Africa, the representative for Homoeopathy on the Allied Health Professions Council of South Africa (AHPCSA), and both Vice-Chairperson of the AHPCSA and Chairperson of its Education Committee.
