

Students help out at St Martin's Home

DUT's international students will spend a day with children at St Martin's Diocesan Home for Children on Saturday 5 May.

The students who hail from Zimbabwe, Lesotho, Malawi, Nigeria, DRC, Zambia and Swaziland, decided to spend the day helping out at the home, preparing lunch for the children, socialising with them, cleaning the yard and doing the dishes.

This is the students' first initiative for 2012 in their community engagement programme. Chris Muhwava, one of the event organisers, said by spending the day sharing love, care and kindness with the children of St Martin's home, they would be putting more than just food in their tummies, but love in their hearts as well.

St Martin's has been home to children for more than 100 years. At present, there are 75 children who live at the home. St Martin's relies on the support of the community and donors to continue its vital work. For donations and contributions to this event contact Chris at chrismuhwava@gmail.com or on 073 105 4364.
