

International students give a little love

DUT international students spent the day at St Martin's Diocesan Home for Children recently.

The students from Zimbabwe, Lesotho, Malawi, Nigeria, DRC, Zambia and Swaziland spent the day helping to prepare lunch for the children, cleaning the yard and doing the dishes, as well as spending time socialising with the children.

This is the students' first initiative for 2012 in its community engagement programme.

Chris Muhwava, one of the event organisers, said by spending the day and sharing love, care and kindness with the children of St Martins home the group put a lot more than just food in their tummies, but also love in their hearts.

Lydia Yumba, Moabi Kenosi, Samantha Madhanga and Gabriella Messi were part of the group which helped to clean-up the property at St Martin's Children's Home.

Thelma Zindoga, Victor Tatenda and Faith Semwayo.

Jacob Kabangu and Mpumy Nkambule. PHOTOS: Lauren Boyle